Previous version

Cooperating with supervising organizations and implementing organizations in Japan, sending organizations should provide the necessary support to technical intern trainees who need to temporarily return home for ceremonial family occasions. In order for them to re-enter Japan with technical intern trainee status of residence, it is essential that formalities for “re-entry permission” are completed in Japan before they physically return. Sending organizations should cooperate with supervising organizations and implementing organizations to support such trainees in obtaining re-entry permission.

Cooperating with supervising organizations and implementing organizations in Japan, sending organizations should provide the necessary support to technical intern trainees who need to temporarily return home for ceremonial family occasions. The “special re-entry permit” system was introduced in the amended Immigration Control Act, which came into effect on July 9, 2012, rendering application for re-entry permits unnecessary. Those exiting Japan under special re-entry need to have a valid passport and resident card and convey their intent to re-enter Japan to the immigration inspector at the port of exit. The period during which re-entry is permitted is through to the end of the period of stay, and permission to extend the effective period cannot be received from overseas.
